WALKER TEXTURES® TRANSITION
A NEW WAY TO LOOK AT ACID-ETCHED GLASS!

Montreal, September 1st 2015 – Walker Glass is proud to announce the launch of Walker Textures® Transition containing two new ways to create gradient effects on acid-etched glass.

True Fade provides an etched finish that subtly fades into a clear fully transparent surface while the Gradient process uses dots in various spacing. Both custom solutions can be used in interior as well as in exterior applications.

“The transition effect on glass is often requested by architects and designers. We believe the Walker Textures® Transition products perfectly answer the need to create privacy zones while maximizing the daylight penetration into the space. The True Fade finish is unique, its smoothness and translucency give the glass a chic look. With the Gradient finish we obtain a more pronounced contrast with a full control of the design and its density.” says Marc Deschamps, Business Development Manager.

“We are pleased to be able to offer our clients the Walker Textures® Transition products. We see it being used for interior as well as for exterior applications. Of course, they are supported by our 10 year warranty on surface degradation. True Fade can be produced on glass sheets as large as 96” x 144”. This will inevitably give our clients the desired flexibility to optimize each project.” says Ross Christie, V-P Sales & Marketing.

You can see the new Walker Textures® Transition products during the upcoming GlassBuild Show at Booth 1027. Samples are now available and can be ordered at: <http://walkerglass.com/products/transition>
