FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

INTRODUCING THE FIRST SPECIFICATIONS ON ACID-ETCHED GLASS IN NORTH AMERICA

Montreal, November 18, 2011 – Walker Glass is proud to introduce the first three part specifications on acid-etched glass, mirror and anti-slip glass.

Being more present with architects and designers, Walker Glass recognized the need for three part specifications. Acid-etched glass and mirror have become an integral part of the design process of many architects and designers. As a result, Walker Glass has taken the initiative to develop the specifications for acid-etched glass, mirror and anti-slip glass.

These editable documents will provide architects with a great tool to specify the acid-etched products in a more elaborate way. In the past, the label description or the part number was used to specify acid-etched products. Now this tool will permit the architects to look at aspects beyond aesthetic. For example, they will now be able to be sure of the uniformity of the etching by using the gloss table range for a selected product.

“We wanted these specifications for the Walker Textures products for a couple of years. The documents will help define the true effect of acid-etched glass in comparison to look alike products. We believe that it is going to ease and clarify the incorporation of that type of material in the final specification documents for architects and specification writers.” says Marc Deschamps, Business Development Manager.

The specifications can be easily downloaded from the Walker Glass web site under (<http://www.walker-glass.com/acid-etched-glass-specifications.html>). Architectural Director, John Krajewski is available for specification clarifications and assistance.

Walker Glass Co. Ltd. is a dynamic market-driven enterprise with over 65 years of experience in the glass and mirror industry in North America. Innovation and creativity is at the heart of its development. In 2002, the company launched a full surface acid-etched glass and mirror product line under the Walker Textures™ brand name. Since then, the company has added a line of custom and stock patterns called Walker Textures™ Nuance.
